When we say Heavy Duty....

Like so many of the things we sell, the Falcon™ HD Gel Arm Rest/Tray Table started with a request from one of our VA Hospitals.

The CLC has traditionally used a “half tray” as an arm-rest, when the client has an arm that’s typically bigger or who need support beyond a standard arm rest. (Something we commonly see with clients who have lymph edema, morbid obesity or with hemiparesis.)

It’s a great idea, but the current products have two problems; the tray itself and the hardware that holds it in place. The trays tend to warp over time and bend inwards. Items, and the client’s arm, often fall from their intended area of security, winding up in a lap or (in the case of smaller items) on the floor.

The hardware just isn’t strong enough to keep the tray in place and secure. With the added weight and normal activity it “wanders” from its set position and sometimes become disengaged. It winds up being a “light weight” solution for a “heavy weight” problem.

The New Falcon™ HD Gel Armrest/Tray Table solves both of these problems

The sturdy construction resists warping and the hardware keeps the tray in its intended position. It is available in two lengths and both swing up for easy transfer. The tray does not detach from the chair. This eliminates the odds of misplacing it once it is detached from the wheelchair. (You can take off the upper arm and remove the whole assembly if it’s in the way) It comes standard with gel and vinyl cover. It is also available with clear Lucite plastic tray as an upcharge. If you need a cup holder, you can order it as an option as well.

‘when I say something is heavy duty, you not only have my word on it, you have ME on it.’
